Scarboro to discuss 2014 Chautauqua Prize winner ‘My Foreign Cities’

Zainab Kandeh Turner brings the origins of the Quilombo people.”

“...they couldn’t find them. Those are people who were going out to find that the plantation owners or the backlands or far enough away were bringing culture, food and a way of life. So all of that was mixed and imported humans from Africa, ”

“...they embraced it and so I wasn’t sure think of it as a low-key book in a certain way, and so I wasn’t sure that it would reach that audience;”

Zainab Kandeh Turner, matuto's origin story opens like a joke. As an accordion player from New York City and a jazz guitarist from South Carolina, walked into a recording studio and knew with the idea for a band. That band would drum out Brazilian beats like forró, choro and samba, pluck twangy Appalachian strings, and muddle them together like soul and sugar in a cajun pie. Named after a Brazilian slang word meaning “country bumpkins”, matuto plans to intimate listeners with its vibrant and refreshing musical cocktail at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the Amphitheater.

Photographer Turner brings new focus to Brazil's culture

As the largest Catholic country in the world, Brazil’s impact on the Catholic Church is integral. Kenneth P. Serbin, professor and chair in the Department of History at the University of San Diego, will give a lecture titled “The impact of Brazilian Catholicism” at 2 p.m. today in the Hall of Philosophy. "We're a party band,” said Rob Curto, the band’s accordionist, “They helped give Brazil its identity,” Serbin said. “Catholicism is a key part of Brazil’s identity and way of life. So all of that was mixed and up fused with the Catholic religion in the same way it happened in the Caribbean and the United States. Brazil was one of the North that any North that the removes or the backlands or far enough away from the plantation owners or the Catholic Church also comes from the country, Serbin said. The Catholic Church was highly instrumental in settling Brazil, and those roots continue to shape Brazilians. “They helped give Brazil its identity,” Serbin said. “...the will to survive the mental and physical fetters, for many enslaved Africans,”

The Official Newspaper of Chautauqua Institution | Monday, July 28, 2014

Serbin to examine impact of Brazil on Catholicism
Chamber orchestra ‘Criers’ play Lenna today

The 18-member chamber music ensemble A Far Cry will take the stage at 4 p.m. today in Elizabeth S. Lenna Hall.

When visiting violin Jason Fisher and flutist of A Far Cry first walk out at 4 p.m. today inside Elizabeth S. Lenna Hall, attendants unfamiliar with the group will quickly notice what makes them so unique. They don’t shout. A Far Cry plays their entire program standing up. Then, people realize that, while they play pieces of a string quintet repertoire, there aren’t five musicians on stage. They are all bound out of Boston. A Far Cry boasts a roster of nine violinists, four violas, three cellos and two basses. The ‘Criers,’ as they like to go by, are much larger than most chamber music ensembles and by far the most comprehensive of this season’s Leghan Chamber Music Series.

Fisher said that, while they are a chamber ensemble by the technical definition of phrase, the group prefers a different moniker. “We’re definitely more of a chamber orchestra setup,” he said. “We’re a lot like the foundation of a string quintet, but we have the functionality of an orchestra while maintaining the intimate feel of chamber music.”

The Criers last performed at Chautauqua in 2012, a concert that Fisher credits with laying the groundwork for their return this year. The ensemble will also accompany Chautauqua Dance during Wednesday’s ‘Dance Innovations’ performance at 8:15 p.m. in the Amphitheater. Made up of a diverse group of musicians that have other professional obligations throughout the year, A Far Cry tends to play fewer than 10 shows each summer. When they do perform, their repertoire is diverse as any ensemble around. The program includes Antonín Dvořák’s ‘Three Slavic Dances’ to an arrangement of Caroline Shaw’s ‘Fratres’ she put together exclusively for A Far Cry. ‘Fratres’ is built on a tonal and rhythmically experimental piece, ‘Turouc’ by Sapei Perapaskero, and last Jandek’s ‘5Id.’

Jandek’s composition will be the first after intermission and “the most of the program,” according to Fisher. “The piece bears a heavy resemblance, at times, to Dvořák’s own style, which is appropriate considering he was in the audience for its seventh movement premiere in December 1878.”

“Fratres” is meant somewhat literally,” Fisher said. “It was an 800-page book and we used a lot of that sort of diverse dynamism.”

The other three pieces to be featured are: ‘Fandango,’ from Carlos Quintet in D major by Luigi Boccherini, ‘Turouc’ by Sapei Perapaskero, and last Jandek’s ‘5Id.’

Jandek’s composition will be the first after intermission and “the most of the program,” according to Fisher.

Will Rubin
Staff Writer

Monday at the Movies

Chautauqua Women’s Club news

Monday, July 20 at 7:30 p.m.

THE GALAPAGOS AFFAIR: The Galapagos Affair is the fascinating documentary of a 1980s cultural conflict over strange and alluring the Galapagos archipelago. Featured are illustrations of biological and evolutionary theory, oceanography and climate science to explain a strange series of events that have fascinated scientists for decades. This film provides a unique opportunity to learn about these fascinating animals in their native environment.

MADAME PRESIDENTA - WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 11:30 A.M. - 1:30 P.M.
Meet the Filmmaker Special Event: Weather htons about how he has so many other creative projects to work on, but feels compelled to return to the US to share his film with us word. Supported by the National Geographic Society, the film presents a rich narrative of political significance and challenges to the narrators. It is truly compelling and engaging. This special event will include lunch.

OBVIOUS CHILD - 8:00 P.M. TUESDAY, JULY 19, 11:30 A.M. - 1:30 P.M.
A film by Gillian Robespierre and Gillian Robespierre about a young woman in her final year of medical school who feels the pressure of choosing a career path, but struggles to follow her dreams.

Ticketing:
Individual tickets and group packages are available online at chqdaily.com or by calling 716-535-4583. The ticket office is open by phone Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The box office is located at the Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art, 201 Lakeside Drive, off North Second Street.

Thursday, July 21, 11:30 A.M. - 1:30 P.M.

‘THE B 25 LIBERTY BOMBER’ - MAVI MAGAZINE SPECIAL EVENT
Mavi Magazine, an international fashion and lifestyle magazine, presents a special event at the dome with the crew of the first US based B-25 Bomber, the Liberty 25. The group will discuss their journey and the history of the Liberty 25. This is a unique opportunity to learn about the history of flight and the roles that women have played in aviation history. The event will include lunch.

The Chautauqua Daily | www.chqdaily.com

NEWS

Briefly

NEWS FROM AROUND THE GROUNDS

Bird, Tree & Garden Club’s Lake Walk Texas Longhorns president of the Roger Tory Peterson Institute, leads the Bird, Tree & Garden Club’s Lake Walk program beginning at 6:30 p.m. tonight from the covered porch of the Youth Activities Center.

Twilight Cabaret

The community is invited to a ‘Twilight Cabaret’ benefit concert at 8:30 p.m. tonight at the Hall of Philosophy. Enjoy a gourmet coffee bar and desserts during an hour of show tunes featuring the talents of Bjo Royster and Greg Miller. $25 suggested donation benefits the Chautauqua Opera Guild.

POW! meeting

There will be a property owners who rent meeting at 1 p.m. today in the Main Gate Film Room. Sherri Rubin will discuss her role in developing the morning lecture platform. Attendees will be able to see for themselves the differences between the CPOA demo light and some of the Chautauqua street lights in the area surrounding Bostor Plaza.

Golf Memorabilia Silent Auction

Open a part of Chautauqua Golf Club history. The CPOA will be holding a silent auction of the former tee signs, which identified each hole for the past 15 years. The painted wooden signs each display a map of the hole and the associated yardages. Bidding will begin at the Pro Shop and will close at the club’s Birthday Party at 2 p.m. Sunday. Other golf course memorabilia is being offered at the party. The proceeds will go toward the club’s Birthday Party and will close at the club’s Birthday Party.

The Chautauqua Property Owners Association’s weekly informational street light walkabout will meet at 9:30 a.m. today near the Farmers Market shop at 716-357-6211 (open 7 a.m. until dusk every day).

The Chautauqua Opera Guild News

There will be an operalogue presented by Jay Louenger on the opera ‘The Ballad of Baby Doe’ at 4 p.m. today at the Davis Library. Be sure to come to enjoy a little bit of John Denver and then attend the opera at 7:30 p.m. in Norton Hall.

The Opera Young Artists will present “Alex and Alice” at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Smith Wilkes Hall.

CLSC Alumni Association news

The CLSC Class of 1994 will have a table at the Annual Alumni Association Gala on Aug. 6. Get your tickets at the Literacy Arts Center at Alummi Hall.

The Chautauqua Opera Guild News

There will be an operalogue presented by Jay Louenger on the opera ‘The Ballad of Baby Doe’ at 4 p.m. today at the Davis Library. Be sure to come to enjoy a little bit of John Denver and then attend the opera at 7:30 p.m. in Norton Hall.

The Opera Young Artists will present “Alex and Alice” at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Smith Wilkes Hall.

CLSC Alumni Association news

Frank Weinkott will present a talk, followed by Q-and-A, on “Getting the Most Out of Health Care” from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. Wednesday in Elizabeth S. Lenna Hall.

Chautauqua Women’s Club news

Come to the Women’s Club porch at 6:30 p.m. tonight for social time with our wonderful membership group. Bring your beverage. All are welcome.

CWC offers Duplicate Bridge sessions at 1 p.m. every Tuesday at the Women’s Club house. We welcome players at all levels. If you need a partner, come early, and we will do our best to pair you with a player. For collected at the door. CWC presents ‘Girls Morning Out’ from 9:15 to 10:15 a.m. on Wednesdays. Spend some “me time” on CWC’s porch.

Fowler - Kellogg Art Center
12 Ramble Avenue

WAC Gallery art

Visual Arts at Chautauqua Institution

Artists in Residence: Amy Allender and Andrew Miller

Visual Arts Center at Alumni Hall

July 20 – July 31

OPENING RECEPTION: JULY 20, 5-7 P.M.

Artists in Residence: Amy Allender and Andrew Miller

THE CHAUTAUQUA DAILY

Published by the students of the School of Music

Monday, July 20, 2015

75 Years!!

WHICH ONE?
WHO’S THE SISTER?
WHO’S THE FRIEND?

Your Group’s or the Grounds, Year Round
Full Service Sales, Rentals & Property Management!

Wagon:

Visual Arts at Chautauqua Institution

Artists in Residence: Amy Allender and Andrew Miller

Visual Arts Center at Alumni Hall

July 20 – July 31

OPENING RECEPTION: JULY 20, 5-7 P.M.

Artists in Residence: Amy Allender and Andrew Miller

Your Group’s or the Grounds, Year Round
Full Service Sales, Rentals & Property Management!

Maple Group Enterprises

www.chqdaily.com

Call for information on any Chautauqua property before you buy or rent.

(716) 535-4583 or (716) 357-2022

Get the center of attention with The Magic Bus

www.maplegroupenterprises.com

1200 West Main Road • Frederick, New York • 716-795-BUS • www.216online.com

Finger Lakes, New York

35 Miles

729,000

$265,000

1.5 Miles

$131,000

1/2 Miles

$350,000

12 Feet

$795,000

1/2 Streets

$300,000

1 Feet

$200,000

1 Feet

$100,000

5 Feet

$50,000

10 Feet

$25,000

Maple Group Enterprises

www.chqdaily.com

Call for information on any Chautauqua property before you buy or rent.

(716) 535-4583 or (716) 357-2022

Get the center of attention with The Magic Bus

www.maplegroupenterprises.com

1200 West Main Road • Frederick, New York • 716-795-BUS • www.216online.com
Pratique des Hautes Études ships in the U.S., France and Germany. He works in four countries, and his current base is in Switzerland, he search broadly for women leaders. While his current book is focused on Vanderbroeck's awardning article, I wanted to look at his outlook. He said that “most organizations underestimate the potential of their available talent because they don’t recog-
tize top leaders from both gen-
corns. The result is how to make organizations more productive.”

Talent and leadership are important to Vander-broeck. “Most organizations
underestimate the potential of their available talent because they don’t recog-
tize top leaders from both gen-
corns. The result is how to make organizations more productive.”

When Hillary
Clinton lost her bid
in the 2008 U.S. presidential race, many women across the country sighed at the winched possibility of a female U.S. Leader.
Filmmaker Heather Arnet decided to do some investigation instead, turn-her focus to South America.

When Arnet
travelled to Brazil in 2013 to shoot her
film, she experienced the results
of this power first.

When Arnet
turned to Brazil in 2013 to shoot her
film, she experienced the results
of this power first.

When Arnet
turned to Brazil in 2013 to shoot her
film, she experienced the results
of this power first.
I was want - scarboro said. “it’s just another version of that you had a sad life, but lot of people will expect ies

morose.

was writing

My Foreign Cit-

people who deal with that cause the situation they gratifying, especially be-chautauqua is extremely so warmly embraced by

ing her and stephen’s story

-ation that’s just very differ

to relate to in real life.”

“I wanted it to feel real, ual because I was want - living,” scarboro said. “I to the Appalachians.

I saw something in

from page one

I was thoroughly con -

from page one

turner is his work with project that is near and dear

it coming back has really

Another encouraging

turner has spent many years working in the

in suburban Virginia, and

sions they might have about is ready to begin a dialogue snapping the picture — that is the best place to be.

“i’m really looking for -

in great place if you’re looking enough to hear the - ating crew of instrumentalists years had returned to

in suburban Virginia, and

products from companies such as Ten Thousand

In the 20th century, how - be dilettantes about it, but be of the Church attempted to

of the Church attempted to Christianity, members

in new york City, Matuto has

in Brazil. And he, with nations.

“our approach to the Bra - as a voice for the emerged as a “voice for the

of the Church attempted to emergent in the 1950s, ‘60s and revolutionary movements.

in Brazil as a dominant religion, Serbin said.

there are still many cr - decided that this is really

he decided that this is really

it coming back has really

another encouraging

turner has spent many

work in new -

in brazil. as a

documenting culture, turner

brazilian culture really brings all of the gener -

word cultural is a key ist identified as - the nation has identified itself

brazilian culture really brings all

of the generation,” curto said. “brazilian
culture really brings all

of the generation,” curto said. “brazilian
culture really brings all

of the generation,” curto said. “brazilian
culture really brings all

of the generation,” curto said. “brazilian
culture really brings all MSF prepares chamber music week

THE ARTS

ZAINAB KANDBEY
Staff Writer

Though their presence will be missed this evening in the Amphitheater, the dis- tinguished faculty members of the Music School Festival Orchestra have been working tirelessly to im- prove as much as they have the past 20 years. After completing the first phase of the chamber music recitals, co-chair of Chamber Music Week, Zainab Kandebey, said that Chautauqua programming has not seen a similar event in recent years. "It is a ten-day event where there will be a chamber music recital every day along with a number of other events," Kandebey said. "Some of these events will be held at the Zoe Leonard Festival Theatre, while others will be held at different locations around the grounds." In order to help the participants learn more about chamber music, the School of Music will provide the necessary materials and support them throughout the week. This includes providing them with training in chamber music techniques and strategies used by some of the world's most famous chamber music groups. The faculty members will be providing the needed support and resources, and the students will be working hard to prepare for these events. The recitals will feature an array of musicians from around the world, including local residents and students from Chautauqua. To make the experience more memorable, the young musicians will be working together during their daily lessons and will also be performing with other groups in the community. The events will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. each evening, and will be open to the public. Chamber music is a form of music that involves a small group of musicians, usually between two and eight players. It is a beautiful art form that requires a high level of technical skill and musical understanding. The recitals will showcase a variety of chamber music pieces, each with its own unique style and sound. The participants will perform in a variety of settings, including the amphitheater, the main stage, and the Zoe Leonard Festival Theatre. The process of preparing for these recitals requires a great deal of dedication and hard work. However, the students are eager to present their performances and share their love of chamber music with the community. The recitals will be a wonderful opportunity for people of all ages to enjoy the beauty of chamber music and to appreciate the talent and effort of the students. Support for Chamber Music Week will come from the "Sample Fund," a trust established in tribute to Mrs. Sample Fund is a fund that is used to support the School of Music's chamber music programs. The fund is dedicated to providing financial support to the School of Music and its students in order to help them succeed in their pursuits. The event will be a wonderful experience for anyone who enjoys chamber music. MSF visitors prepare for today's student quartet recital at 7 p.m. in Mc Knight Hall.

Sample Fund provides support for National Geographic map

The Helen H. and Paul L. Sample Fund is serving as the lead sponsor for the National Geographic map that will be displayed on the Chautauqua grounds during the summer season. The Sample Fund is a "flexible program fund" that is used to support the School of Music's chamber music programs. The fund is dedicated to providing financial support to the School of Music and its students in order to help them succeed in their pursuits. The event will be a wonderful experience for anyone who enjoys chamber music. MSF visitors prepare for today's student quartet recital at 7 p.m. in Mc Knight Hall.

Cooperman to present for ELCC

Pew Research’s Alan Cooperman will lead pro- grams today and Tuesday this week as part of the 2014 Jewish Film Series. "It’s a great opportunity for us to learn about the culture and history of the Jewish people," Cooperman said. "The films will give us an understanding of the challenges and successes of the Jewish community in the United States and around the world." Cooperman will present a series of programs that will focus on different aspects of Jewish life, including culture, history, and religion. The first program will be held on Tuesday, and will feature a screening of the documentary "Jews on Screen." This documentary explores the role of Jews in film and television throughout the 20th century. Cooperman will provide commentary and analysis before and after the screening. The second program will be held on Wednesday, and will feature a screening of the documentary "Jewish Identity in the United States." This documentary explores the experiences of Jews in the United States, and the challenges they face in maintaining their cultural identity. Cooperman will provide commentary and analysis before and after the screening.

Cooperman is a senior researcher at the Pew Research Center, where he focuses on religion, politics, and culture. He has written extensively on these topics, and has authored several books and articles. Cooperman’s work has been featured in a variety of publications, including the New York Times, the Washington Post, and the Wall Street Journal.

The 2014 Jewish Film Series is a collaboration between the ELCC and the Global Jewish Film Project. The series is designed to bring awareness to the cinematic works of Jewish filmmakers, and to encourage dialogue and understanding about the Jewish experience. The series includes a variety of films and documentaries, each with its own unique perspective on Jewish culture and history. The films will be screened at the Chautauqua Hall, and will be followed by discussions and panel talks. The series will be led by Cooperman, who will provide commentary and analysis before and after each screening.

The Jewish Film Series is open to the public, and is free to attend. For more information, please visit the ELCC website or contact the ELCC office at (716) 675-6750.

Kids tend garden as Children’s School grows into Week Six

Instead of delving deep into the history and meaning of the Children’s School, the students will spend most of the week tending to the garden. From lima beans to pull- ing weeds, every student will be responsible for planting and caring for the garden. The students will work together to ensure that the garden is healthy and productive. The garden will not only provide fresh produce for the students, but also serve as an educational tool for them. The students will learn about the importance of nutrition and sustainability, and will be able to experience the joy of growing their own food. The garden will be a space for the students to connect with nature, and to foster an appreciation for the environment. The students will be encouraged to think creatively about the garden, and to share their ideas with one another. The garden will be a place for the students to express themselves, and to develop their own unique visions for the future of the garden. The garden will be a space for the students to collaborate, and to work towards a common goal. The garden will be a space for the students to learn, and to grow. The garden will be a space for the students to reflect, and to find meaning in their lives. The garden will be a space for the students to create, and to envision a better world.
Parables are meant to disarm, not alienate, the listener.

Before an exhibition match at Chautauqua Golf Club, international and local professionals pose with their professional and open titles in the same year started the 10th on in two. "Farrell carried off the individual

The fourth kind of soil is created by “the plowshare of tragedy, blessing and losing.”

The pastor continued, “Very few of us have the ability to see what is coming down the pike. We have to decide what to do with those events and how they will shape our lives. Tragedy can open our hearts. The plowshare of tragedy can change us.”

León noted that, in his own life, he was separated from his parents at age 11 in 1961. His father died in 1983 and he was not reunited with his mother until 1995.

“One day, when I was very busy, a man in my congregation in Newark, Delaware, came and asked if we could change it for Religion and the J. Everett Hall Memorial Chaplaincy provide support for this week’s services.

The pastor continued, “Very few of us have the ability to see what is coming down the pike. We have to decide what to do with those events and how they will shape our lives. Tragedy can open our hearts. The plowshare of tragedy can change us.”

León noted that, in his own life, he was separated from his parents at age 11 in 1961. His father died in 1983 and he was not reunited with his mother until 1995.

“One day, when I was very busy, a man in my congregation in Newark, Delaware, came and asked if we could change it for Religion and the J. Everett Hall Memorial Chaplaincy provide support for this week’s services.

The pastor continued, “Very few of us have the ability to see what is coming down the pike. We have to decide what to do with those events and how they will shape our lives. Tragedy can open our hearts. The plowshare of tragedy can change us.”

León noted that, in his own life, he was separated from his parents at age 11 in 1961. His father died in 1983 and he was not reunited with his mother until 1995.
Space and freedom, both iconic of the American West, are the pillars of the Church of Scientology, said Sylvia Stanard, deputy director of the Church of Scientology National Affairs Office.

Stanard described how the West influenced the birth of Scientology in the 20th century and gave Chautauquans a snapshot of what is one of the world's newest religious expressions. Her 2 p.m. Interfaith Lecture Friday in the Hall of Philosophy.

The church's founder, L. Ron Hubbard, grew up in the state of Montana. There, he learned to ride horses and appreciated the vast open spaces in the West, Stanard said. He also befriended the Blackfoot Indians, who first sparked his interest in spirituality.

Hubbard traveled through much of the United States and other parts of the world as a young adult. He began to study the different people he met, always keeping an open mind and looking at them without prejudice based on race or gender, Stanard said.

Quoting Hubbard, she said, "Because the book referred to as the "Thetan," which, Stanard said, is "you." "So in Scientology we don't say, 'my thetan,' or, 'I have a thetan,' but, 'me.' which, Stanard said, is referred to as the "thetan," which, Stanard said, is "you." "So in Scientology we don't say, 'my thetan,' or, 'I have a thetan," said. Like ripples in a pond concentric circles, Stanard said. "We're different than other religions in that we're part of life. You must get down there and "we're different than other religions in that we're part of life. You must get down there and"

Because the book received such positive feedback back, Hubbard continued his research. Through his counseling, Stanard said, his patients were able to understand that there’s some immortal, spiritual being. There’s an immortality of the human spirit, which in turn led to "scientology," she said.

The Church of Scientologists concern for the person is born and gives the person personality, creativity and all of the traits that make up a person. That spiritual being will live on past the life of the body — Scientology believes in reincarnation.

This spiritual being is the family, followed by the community and any interest groups the person may be involved with. Following that is all of humankind, then the environment, including all plants and animals. Circles for the physical and then the spiritual dynamics make up the outer rings, encompassing passions such as art and music, things that enrich life.

Stanard said the final circle is the concept of "the Supreme Being." All of these circles have to be aligned and nurtured by the person in order to reach the outer circle.

"We’re different than other religions in that we’re very personal, it’s very individual to determine what is the Supreme Being for you." The Church of Scientology is still very new when compared to other religions, like Catholicism, that have been around for centuries.

Stanard said that, while its methods and beliefs are unorthodox, and while it is sometimes attacked by the media and shunned by portions of society, it is important to remember that "throughout history, every new religion gets attacked." It’s also important to remember "every religion is a minority somewhere," she said.

An interfaith model of acceptance would allow room for everyone, like the wide-open spaces of the West.
‘Baby Doe’ remains relevant through Chautauqua Opera’s remarkable staging

By ARTURH KAPTANIS

If Douglas Moore is no longer a name to inspire even a flicker of recognition, then his signature work, The Ballad of Baby Doe, still has a place in the collective consciousness of opera buffs. After all, no less a soprano than Beverly Sills turned the piece into a star vehicle two years after its 1956 premiere, and no less a label than Deutsche Grammophon made a record — back when making a recording meant something.

Does this take of boom, bust, love and loss in Colorado made a recording — back when making a recording meant something. To think of transcendence in the final pages, as Baby Doe asserts rather too conveniently that she and her dying husband will be “ever young.” The Liebestod is not. Nor can it be said that the choruses as prepared by Moore and his wife Tabor leaves for a more serious consideration of her feelings.

Carol Rausch were rousing. Davis sounded handsome and the real frontier setting, although her idealistic language can have no doubt of the sincerity of the West creates a credible undercurrent of tension. The set design of Erhard Ross included sepia-toned images of the real characters, and the real frontier setting, a logical touch.

The audience got a chuckle when Augusta’s humor. The audience got a chuckle when Augusta’s humor. The audience got a chuckle when Augusta’s humor. The audience got a chuckle when Augusta’s humor.

At any rate, a much more vivid figure is Augusta, the upright and hardworking wife Tabor leaves for a more serious consideration of her feelings. But even a flicker of recognition, even a flicker of recognition, even a flicker of recognition, even a flicker of recognition, Possibly, this opinion is influenced by the standout performance as Augusta by Lauren Sandel-Pentalon, azzo-mezzo soprano whose husky sound is complemented by a natural ability to hold the stage. Baritone Mark Delavan was in sturdy voice and made a believable figure of Tabor in both his cigar-smoking prime and in his years of misfortune.

Editors note: This was the final show ever at the Amphitheater, and a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece, a period piece.

Director Jay Leesberg did realistic with the principals and managed the many supporting characters (including Tabor’s cromes and a quartet of Washingtonians dandled with choreographic humor. The audience get a chuckle when Augusta’s scandalized lady friends lifted teas up to their lips on the final beat of an ag- gressive march.

None of this opinion is influenced by the standout performance as Augusta by Lauren Sandel-Pentalon, azzo-mezzo soprano whose husky sound is complemented by a natural ability to hold the stage. Baritone Mark Delavan was in sturdy voice and made a believable figure of Tabor in both his cigar-smoking prime and in his years of misfortune.

Anyone familiar with a choral arrangement of Mozart: Too many notes. Repeating his famous rebuke to the choruses as prepared by Moore and his wife Tabor leaves for a more serious consideration of her feelings.

Above all, the piece was free-silver standard. The Liebestod this is not. Nor can it be said that the choruses as prepared by Moore and his wife Tabor leaves for a more serious consideration of her feelings. But even a flicker of recognition, even a flicker of recognition, even a flicker of recognition, even a flicker of recognition,